Board Break 7 MIN

Individual — Upset Ridgehand

Gloves on. Heavy bag only. Load with the back of the hand at the opposite ear and elbow up. Rotate hip and shoulder, lift the heel slightly and slam it down, drive the elbow at the target, then whip the hand over at the last second so it lands upset and follows through. Not too high, elbow not locked straight. Mental picture: the strike folds the opponent in half like a bow.

Board level is individualized: the student's own size and ability. Level up only after 3 consecutive first-try breaks. Any miss means stay at the current board.

Self-Defense — Body Lock and Bear Hug 7 MIN

Leg battles: stay connected, stay low

WATER BREAK 2 MIN, EQUIPMENT CHANGE

Self-Defense — Body Lock and Bear Hug 10 MIN (primary focus)

Hand battles: body lock

Two hands against one. Attack the exposed thumb of the top hand: palm over the thumb, fingers wrap to the back of the pinky, pry up and press down like a dip so the wrist bends in like a gooseneck. Once one hand breaks free there is room to escape.

Forms — Choong Jung 2 7 MIN

Segment 9 Refine

Moves 32–35 at tempo, jump switch and jump round kick under control. Technique drill: Horizontal Back Elbow Strike (moves 14, 31) on targets, for precision, stance, rotation and elbow line to the target.

Board level is individualized: the student's own size and ability. Level up only after 3 consecutive first-try breaks. Any miss means stay at the current board.

Self-Defense — Body Lock and Bear Hug 7 MIN

Hand battles: bear hug

Shrug and make space with the elbows, work the arms up and through. One arm always checks the attacker's hands like a one-handed pull-up so they cannot slide to a choke. Finish as a body lock escape. Never push the bear hug up, it becomes a rear choke.

Daily Challenge: Mountain Climbers, AMRAP 30 sec. Rep counts each time a knee drives to the chest. Hands under shoulders, hips level, no piking. Beat your own baseline.

Board Break 7 MIN

Combative Target — Upset Ridgehand + Front Kick

Two targets. Upset ridgehand folds the opponent, hips keep rotating toward the first target, then #2 front kick to finish once their head lowers.

Self-Defense — Body Lock and Bear Hug 7 MIN

Counterattack: strike with intent
